Registration

Dr. Martin is a tenured faculty member at Bryn Mawr College and a Licensed Independent Clinical Social Worker with more than forty years of practice. His scholarship, teaching, and public service focus on behavioral health issues impacting individuals, families and communities; and his research and civic engagement address military and veteran populations. A combat veteran, he was the senior Social Work Officer in the Persian Gulf Theater of Operations during the first Gulf War. Jim currently serves on a number of national and state boards and committees that address military and veteran issues and he is a frequent consultant to senior military and veteran human services program leaders.
